Get current! That is email a PDF to anyone... from the App. You should consider adding the availability to print earnings statements directly from the app. Paylocity allows sending PDF copies from the mobile app. Which can be printed or screenshot at another location. It's a hassle getting things printed if one doesn't own a pc or have easy accessibility to one or a printer. I can't immediately display a copy. I have to run around trying to find a pc and printer. A PDF email to oneself or another would make it more convenient and put it on par with paylocity's options/features. Also it would at minimum allow one to screenshot it -- We've have been using this app to clock in, clock out, and do a labor transfer in order to be compensated under the correct pay. The first of many infuriating problems with this app is that this app is really inconsistent and unreliable when you wanna do anything with your time clock. Whenever I or any of my colleagues want to clock in, clock out, start or end our lunch, or even labor transfer we are 95 percent sure that we are going to be hit with an error. What frustrates me even more is that the app doesn't even tell what the problem is instead it just says "An unknown error has occurred" this frustrates me so much because even the app doesn't know why our time clock interactions isn't going through. Another major flaw is the labor transfers and the timesheets. My job especially, in my position, we must transfer between two different pay rates and looking at the time sheet it doesn't even say our transfers went through. So either the timesheet or the labor transfer is not working properly and this may affect my pay. At this point I do not recommend this app. The desktop version is better than this and the desktop version doesn't hit you with errors and works all the time. I've completely stopped using the features the app was made for since it doesn't work and just use it to look at my schedule and that's it. Our company recently changed from Paycom to Ceridian. I use this app regularly to clock in/ out. I'm not impressed. Simple things that were easy with Paycom are lacking here. For example, when I have authorized time off, whether it be vacation or holiday pay, it does not total the same hours into my weekly totals. I have to factor those hours in on my own. Additionally, in Paycom, my weeks were separated by pay periods with two week total hours added and shown. Not the case with this app. As a part time employee, I have to go back and add authorized time off hours on my own. Doesn't seem like it would be so hard to make these changes in a system. This would save me precious time as an employee. Separate the weeks per pay period in the app. Factor in all hours (vacation, sick, holiday) into weekly totals. This was all done with ease in Paycom. I shouldn't have to log onto my my computer to view these totals. Defeats the purpose of an app. Finally, move the tab where you log-out in the app. It is at the bottom of the options, which is blocked by pop-up confirming clock-out. Again, a very simple fix. Wish we could go back to Paycom! The developer, Dayforce Corporation, indicated that the app's privacy practices may include handling of data as described below.
